The Gas Vans fills a significant hole in Holocaust literature. Often forgotten in the public mind and limited to minor entries in the most important Holocaust tomes, (gas vans are mentioned on 4 pages out of 790 in Hilberg's The Destruction of the European Jews and on 7 pages out of 622 in Reitlinger's The Final Solution). While they may seem unimportant to the broader Holocaust story, one must pause when one realizes that the Holocaust fundamentalists charge that as many as 700,000 fell ...

A gas van or gas wagon was a truck reequipped as a mobile gas chamber. During World War II and The Holocaust, Nazi Germany developed and used gas vans on a large scale as an extermination method to murder inmates of asylums, Poles, Romani people, Jews, and prisoners in occupied Poland, Belarus, Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union, and other regions of German-occupied Europe.

Gas van - Wikipedia

Above the critical temperature, T_C , the van der Waals equation is an improvement over the ideal gas law, and for lower temperatures, i.e., $T < T_C$, the equation is also qualitatively reasonable for the liquid and low-pressure gaseous states; however, with respect to the first-order phase transition, i.e., the range of (p, V, T) where a liquid ...

Van der Waals equation - Wikipedia

Although the phase above the critical point is technically a gas, it has a much higher density than a typical gas, and it has much greater solvating properties than a gas. Thus, the phase beyond the critical point is usually called a supercritical fluid. The van der Waals Equation

The gas vans were supplied to the Einsatzgruppen and to the Chelmno death camps in November-December 1941. The killing in Chelmno began on December 8, 1941. By the middle of 1942, about thirty gas vans had been produced by a private car manufacturer, the Gabschat Farengewerke GMBH, Will=Walter Strasse 32-38, Berlin.

Einsatzgruppen - From Shootings to Gas Vans

As far as the fate of the gas vans is concerned, we know that some vehicles were transformed to transport vehicles, others were sent back to Berlin, where the gassing box was presumably dismantled and the chassis used for some other purpose, and at least one gas van was blown up upon the retreat of Einsatzgruppe D, according to a radio message of the Einsatzgruppen leader Bierkamp to the RSHA chief Kaltenbrunner of 18 February 1943:
