In addition to the Concord River which forms part of the town's borders, the Shawsheen River flows through town. Vine Brook flows from Lexington, Massachusetts, through Burlington, Massachusetts, and into the Shawsheen in Bedford. In the 1840s, a large paper mill was built on Vine Brook, that supplied many of the jobs in town.

The cider was good; the Loiseaus and the nuns drank it from motives of economy. The others ordered wine; Cornudet demanded beer. He had his own fashion of uncorking the bottle and making the beer foam, gazing at it as he inclined his glass and then raised it to a position between the lamp and his eye that he might judge of its color.

45. Pan for gold in the Swift River. Confession: this made the list because it was a childhood dream of mine, and we just never got the chance to do it. Prospecting for gold is still a thing in western Maine, and it's still very much on my Maine bucket list. 46. Check out Moxie memorabilia at the Matthews Museum.
